

Abstract

The present invention relates to an instantaneous settlement apparatus which settles a purchase of a customer at the spot of the purchase using a debit card and informs the customer of an account balance and an account transaction history.